Is the WSDA Brand Name Material List accepted outside of Washington State?

On March 5, 2008, the USDA sent a memo to all USDA certifying agents regarding the verification of materials used under the National Organic Program. The National Organic Program amended its policy to allow accredited certifying agents (ACAs) to consult with other ACAs to determine the acceptability of formulated (branded) products.

As of August 8, 2008, the following Accredited Certifying Agents have signed a Materials Evaluation and Registration Recognition Agreement with the Washington State Department of Agriculture. This agreement allows the ACA to use the WSDA Brand Name Material List as a resource for input materials approved for use in organic agricultural production and processing.
